2 They used to make old style bread, cookies and other stuff, more healthy than the mass produced shit that's sold in stores today. Genetically modified vegetables are only made for maximum profits and "vendor lock-in".

Look it up, if you buy seeds from company A you can't grow stuff from company B on the same field, they even have their own mix of poison that kills everything except their own product.

I guess that's a bit of the joke, Pepperidge farm remembers how it used to be.

3 It works. Test it by putting your phone in it and calling or texting it.

2 Food is calories. But yes, it's high in simple sugars which is not great for dental health and probably relatively low in micro-nutrients. And of course it tastes good, which means it's easy to overeat if you have a problem with that.
